

"Knowledge, Not Hate, Is Paskey To Future"

88,000 Hear Kennedy's Address In Calif. Visit

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — President Kennedy, before the largest crowd he has ever addressed in one place, declared Friday that the tide of history is sweeping the world away from communism toward democracy and freedom.

"Knowledge, not hate, is the passkey to the future," Kennedy told an audience of 88,000, largest crowd in the history of the University of California's 80,000-seat Memorial Stadium.

Mankind must seek eternally to acquire knowledge and apply it with wisdom, he said in a speech at the celebration of the 94th anniversary of the university's Charter Day.

No One Can Doubt

And with a revolution for national independence "a fundamental fact in our era," the President asserted, "no one who examined the modern world can doubt that the great currents of history are carrying the world away from the monolithic idea toward the pluralistic idea—away from communism and toward democracy and freedom."

While Americans may look with confidence on the direction history is taking the world, Kennedy said, they must reject "oversimplified theories of international life."

Among these he cited "the theory that American power is unlimited, or that the American mission is to remake the world in the American image."

The possibility of Soviet cooperation in space enterprises "opens up exciting prospects of collaboration in other areas of learning," Kennedy said.

"And cooperation in the pursuit of knowledge can hopefully lead to cooperation in the pursuit of peace."

Long View

Kennedy flew here to give his "long view" of the profound tendencies shaping the future of the world and to receive an honorary degree.

Large enthusiastic crowds lined the streets of Alameda, Oakland and Berkeley as the President drove from Alameda Naval Air Station, where his Air Force jet landed, to the campus.

He stopped half an hour at the university's radiation laboratory, first of the nation's big nuclear research installations, to express his support of its programs. While there, he received a confidential briefing on its works.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown, who is up for reelection, and Edwin W. Pauley, chairman of the university's board of regents, rode in the limousine with Kennedy. They weren't allowed into the laboratory.

At the stadium, Kennedy received a standing, shouting, whistling, clapping ovation from the crowd massed on a beautiful, sunny afternoon.

Kennedy wore a gold-tasseled cap and plain black robe. Thousands sat or stood on the football field. Several hundred

JFK May Ask Aid On Public Works

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy is expected to ask Congress Monday to provide an immediate public works program for areas experiencing persistent unemployment.

Reliable sources said Friday the plan will call for a federal outlay of $400 to $500 million. The program's total cost might be double that amount, since states would be called on to match most if not all the federal grants.

Projects would be limited to those that could be started quickly and completed in a year, the object being to provide work for long-term unemployed workers.

The President is reported to have given his approval to the plan only Thursday. This followed an appeal by labor union leaders in a White House visit March 12.

George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, sent Kennedy a letter Wednesday, it was learned, urging that he beef up the standby public works program that the administration earlier had recommended to Congress to combat future recessions.

Officials emphasized that the proposal for an immediate public works program does not represent official fears of a new recession but rather is an effort to provide work for some of the unemployed, officially counted at 4,543,000 in mid-February. Many of these have been idle for long periods.

Rep. John A. Blatnik, D-Minn., chairman of the House Public Works Committee, and Sen. Joseph Clark, D-Pa., author of a Senate public works proposal, wrote Kennedy a few days ago urging an immediate rather than a standby public works plan.

Governor's Son Nabbed For Speeding

HARRISBURG (AP) — The 23-year-old son of David Lawrence was arrested on a speeding charge by a state police radar team on March 5. It was disclosed Friday.

State police reports show that Gerald Lawrence, only living son of the governor, was clocked at 65 m.p.h. in a 50 m.p.h. zone on Route 11 in Hampden Township, Cumberland County, at 9:30 p.m. He was assessed $15 in fines and costs. He faces a 30-day suspension of his license.

Gov. Lawrence, who has made highway safety a cornerstone of his administration and who successfully battled for legalized radar against speeders, issued the following statement:

"He will take his medicine the same as any other citizen. I'm sure this will teach him a lesson that will make him a better and safer driver in the future."

It was the second time young Lawrence has been arrested for speeding. In 1958, young Lawrence was arrested in western Pennsylvania. The arrest did not hold up, however, because the state trooper who made it could not produce a certificate attesting to the accuracy of his police speedometer.

But young Lawrence voluntarily surrendered his license at that time for a 15-day period.

Two of the governor's teen-age sons were killed in an automobile accident in 1944.

Dilworth Reception Not 'Chilly'

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Lawrence Friday dismissed as "overemphasized" reports that "Richard Dilworth was given a chilly reception by some Allegheny County Democratic leaders."

Several of the county's top party leaders, headed by Dr. William McClelland, did not attend a reception in Pittsburgh Wednesday for Dilworth, the Democratic organization candidate for governor.

Lawrence, a Pittsburgher, was asked his impression of the Dilworth affair at his weekly news conference.

With a shrug of his shoulders, Lawrence replied:

"The McClelland group just didn't come. But Dilworth had a warm reception otherwise. He's doing very well out there and he is not a bit discouraged."

Lawrence and aides denied there would be any delay in payment of state subsidies due for first, second and third class school districts in April.

State Republican Chairman George I. Bloom had said in a statement that "the state is so short in cash right now in its General Fund that payments to all the largest school districts... will have to be postponed this month."

David Baldwin, budget secretary, said the Republicans "dropped the ball" because payments to third class districts to be made before the end of April.

Baldwin explained that payments to the two first class and 30 second class districts will have to wait until receipts from the corporate net income tax start rolling in April 15.

Lawrence said the Republicans seemed "overanxious" for an issue.

Lawrence also indicated he is satisfied with the present operations of the Pharmacy Board and other licensing boards, which had been the subject of controversy several months ago.

He said he didn't plan any changes at the moment and saw none in the future "if they get along harmoniously."

Free Surgeon In Mystery Death Of Socialite Wife

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Dr. Manfred von Linde, handsome New York plastic surgeon, was released Friday by Haitian authorities investigating the mysterious death of his wealthy socialite wife, Lucille Rogers von Linde.

New York attorney Charles Emmet Jr., representing Von Linde, told reporters his Alabama-born client had been completely cleared.

Authorities declined immediate comment on the release. Von Linde, bearded after five days' detention, left the yellow-walled central police headquarters here and went to the U.S. Embassy. He conferred there with Emmet and another attorney, Gerald Barendes, also of New York.

Mrs. von Linde, of Kansas City and New York, died March 14 at swank Cap Haitien Hotel, 200 miles north of here—13 days after her marriage to Von Linde at Wilton, Conn.

An autopsy conducted shortly after Mrs. von Linde died listed cause of death as a heart attack.

The results of a second autopsy—requested by Mrs. von Linde's relatives—failed to substantiate the first autopsy's findings, officials reported Friday afternoon.

Preliminary results of the second autopsy showed no evidence of foul play, they added.

Authorities said the second autopsy was performed because the first did not meet legal requirements; no civil official assisted.

Max Duplessis, government commissioner (prosecutor) said the finding of the second autopsy did not necessarily mean it was impossible that Mrs. von Linde suffered a heart attack. But he added no evidence was discovered to establish such a cause.

133 Pints Are Collected In Blood Drive At ESSC

ONE-HUNDRED thirty-three pints of blood were collected yesterday by the Red Cross bloodmobile at the East Stroudsburg State College campus.

The donors were mostly college students and school officials. However, there was also a number of walk-ins from the area.

A spokesman said 155 had signed to donate blood, but that there were 22 deferrals. The Wilkes-Barre Bloodmobile arrived on the college campus at 10 a.m., Thursday and set up operations in the gymnasium.

Dr. Harold S. Pond and Dr. Charlotte Jordan were in charge. Mrs. Walter Dreher, coordinator of the volunteer blood program of Monroe County, was on hand, as were Mrs. Sidney Cohen and her group of five registered nurses;

Mrs. Jeanette LaBar, chairman of volunteer services; Mrs. John Stanford, chairman of the canteen; and Miss Gertrude Van Dyke, registered nurse from Wilkes-Barre, in charge of the bloodmobile itself.

Dr. George Ockershausen, professor of health and physical education, headed the college donor drive. He was assisted by students Christine Albright, a junior from Lansdale and Horace Cole, a junior from East Stroudsburg.

The next blood drive will take place April 12 sponsored by St. Matthew's Church, East Stroudsburg. The one-day drive will be held from 10:45 a.m. until 4:45 p.m.

Operations will be set up at the St. Matthew's Parochial School auditorium, Ridgeway St., East Stroudsburg.

All-Out Attack Is Ordered; 15 Soldiers Die

French Bring In Planes, Heavy Arms Against OAS

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP)—French troops with armored cars and haltrucks battled through Friday night against European Secret Army Organization terrorists in downtown Algiers. The roaring night battles followed a day that saw French planes and heavy weapons in widespread action.

Gendarmes manning heavy-caliber machine guns sprayed buildings fronts on Rue Michelet with bullets.

Nearby, on the Rue Sadi Carnot, a plastic bomb shook a French tank posted at an intersection. The tank replied with all its guns blazing at a nearby building where secret army snipers were harassing French troops.

A convoy of seven tanks armed with recoilless 75mm cannon moved into the area. The tanks took positions in streets littered with shattered glass. Steel-helmeted infantrymen conducted a systematic house-to-house search.

In the late night hours, occasional explosions, apparently from plastic bombs, could be heard from various parts of the city, mingled with the sound of gunfire. One report said there had been a new attack on a police post at the tunnel beneath Algiers University in the heart of the city.

Tracer Bullets

Tracer bullets streaked skyward along the Rue Michelet, a principal artery leading upward from the business sector.

Electricity suddenly went out in the sector of town fronting the bay. Power also was cut in Bab-el-Oued, plunging the area into darkness.

Near the main post office, shots were fired at a police armored car. The gendarmes trained their heavy machine guns on the building from which the shots came and sprayed the facade. One shell cut the trolley bus wire amid a shower of sparks.

Earlier, French forces attacked the secret army in Bab-el-Oued with planes, armored cars and heavy weapons.

Authorities clamped a curfew on the suburb, inhabited by about 50,000 Europeans, mainly of Italian and Spanish stock. A curfew also was proclaimed in Algiers.

It was the first time in all the years of intermittent rebellion in this troubled land that orders had been given for an all-out attack by Frenchmen against Frenchmen.

Must Be Crushed

President Charles de Gaulle told the Cabinet in Paris the insurrection must be crushed by all means possible. He said the secret army must be pitilessly repressed. In the past, he has frequently sidestepped the issue of measures against the secret army, which opposes his Algerian policies and wants to keep Algeria French.

The outcome of Friday's battle hung in doubt, with rebellious European residents of Bab El Oued holding positions on rooftops, and firing from the shelter of their apartments at dusk. Army and police haltrucks moved into the area to take up positions at strategic intersections. Gunfire from roofs and balconies at the troops below continued.

Army armored cars sprayed bullets into windows and balconies. French air force T6 planes—U.S.-made—strafed the long rows of apartment houses where about 50,000 workers live, many of Italian and Spanish origin. Helicopters dropped tear gas over the area.

Reported Gaining

As Frondizi turned to the soldier once more, Peron-hating military groups were reported gaining an upper hand in efforts to oust the 53-year-old president and establish a military junta, or at least make Frondizi only a figurehead under military direction.

From the opposite direction, Peronist unions hit the nation with a partially effective 24-hour strike to protest Frondizi's decree washing out important victories Peronist candidates gained in last Sunday's elections. The unions threatened to extend the strike for an indefinite period on Monday unless Frondizi rescinded the decree. But this is something the military clearly would not stand for.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk suggested the Soviet Union may be blocking any chance for a treaty in order to arrange a new test series of its own. The Soviets denied this.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko said President Kennedy's plan to conduct atmospheric tests in late April constituted an aggressive act on the part of the United States.

The President has made it plain that the American arrangements are conditional. He specified that the tests will be called off if the Soviet Union, in the interval, accepts a treaty with international controls.

With the support of British Foreign Secretary Lord Home, Rusk said the West must resume testing for its own safety if the Soviets continue to block an agreement.

The three nuclear powers, sitting as a subcommittee, reported their disagreement to the entire conference. Their arguments turned, as in the past, on the problem of control.

However, they showed every sign of wanting to keep the subcommittee alive. They agreed it should meet again Monday.

Gromyko insisted that the Soviet Union would accept a nuclear test ban treaty based only on a system of controls which did not permit outsiders to inspect in the Soviet Union. Such arrangements are completely inadequate, Rusk and Lord Home said.

Rusk pursued that theme in a United Nations radio broadcast.

Rusk said the United States will be forced to go forward with nuclear weapons testing if there is no agreement in Geneva next month on a firm treaty to halt all tests.

Rusk said the U.S. delegation came to Geneva two weeks ago with the positive conviction that disarmament could be achieved. There has not been much progress, he said, "but we have been talking."

The talks have covered nuclear tests, general disarmament and the Berlin situation. Of these, Rusk said, there is a special urgency about the problem of nuclear testing.

Lord Home pointed out within the conference that the Big Three powers made considerable progress toward a treaty in three years of talks which finally were torpedoed by the massive Soviet tests last fall.

During that period the Soviets accepted the principle of international inspection and verification to police a test ban, the Briton recalled, and only details remained to be worked out.

For Creation As Park Site Raystown Dam Plan Termed Justifiable

HUNTINGDON, Pa. (AP)—The proposed Raystown Dam in the Juniata Valley could be "economically justified without development of public power," a representative of the U.S. Army Engineers said Friday.

The point was conceded by John T. Starr of the Army Engineers' Baltimore office under questioning by a legislative committee meeting here to gather data on development of the Susquehanna River Basin.

Much of the testimony at the day long session concerned the dam which has been proposed at a site only about five miles from Huntingdon on the Raystown Branch of the Juniata River.

Draw 700,000

While witnesses conceded that the dam itself was not a part of the overall Susquehanna development program, it has significance in the creation of a park which Starr said the United States National Park Service had estimated would draw about 700,000 visitors a year.

Another objection to the dam was registered by the Pennsylvania Electric Co., Johnstown, which earlier had termed the project as being not in the economic interests of the area.

Ralph F. Bovier, technical vice president of Penn Electric, said "the utilities in the area are prepared to build and operate all of the hydroelectric plants in the basin with private, tax-paying funds, so long as they fit into a rational overall plan which takes into account load characteristics, real costs and the existence of competitive sources of power."

Starr said the net adverse effect on the coal industry of power-developed water resources of the proposed dam would be negligible.

He also expressed the belief that increasing population, wider uses of power and increasing consumption would provide a market for the power to be generated.

More Hearings

Rep. Harris G. Breh, D-Clearfield, chairman of the Joint State Government Commission, said further hearings would be held later, possibly at Clearfield, Williamsport, Towanda and Harrisburg.

He also said that plans were afoot to set up a joint hearing in Binghamton, N.Y., at which representatives of New York and Maryland—other states concerned with Susquehanna River problems—would be represented.

Mayor Frank Slattery, of Wilkes-Barre, president of the Susquehanna River Basin Association, told the committee that if sponsors of the development program failed to follow through "we'll miss the boat again."

Slattery said the issue had been kicking around in Congress for 40 years and throughout that time Pennsylvania has not received a fair return on its tax dollars in the realm of conservation and resource development.

Each Accused Of Pursuing Arms Buildup

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union, deadlocked on terms for negotiating a nuclear test ban treaty, accused each other in the 17-nation disarmament conference Friday of pursuing policies destined to set off a new testing race.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk suggested the Soviet Union may be blocking any chance for a treaty in order to arrange a new test series of its own. The Soviets denied this.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko said President Kennedy's plan to conduct atmospheric tests in late April constituted an aggressive act on the part of the United States.

The Greatest Commandment ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Deuteronomy 6:4-5; Leviticus 19:18; Matthew 19:16-22; 22:35-40; Luke 10:25-37.

On Tuesday of Holy Week the Pharisees, seeking to entrap Christ, got one of their lawyers to question Him. "Teacher," he said, "which is the great commandment in the law?"—Matthew 22:35-38.

Christ answered that "the whole law... and the prophets" stemmed from two great similar commandments—to love God with all one's heart, soul and mind, and to love one's neighbor as oneself.—Matthew 22:37-40.

On another occasion just before His death, Christ was approached by a rich young man who said he had kept all the commandments, and asked what else he might do to gain eternal life.—Matthew 19:16-20.

Christ told him to give up his wealth, which he idolized, and follow Him instead. The young man, unable to part with his riches, departed sorrowfully.—Matthew 19:21-22.

One Great Hour Of Sharing

April 1 is something more than April Fools Day to many people in our area. It is the annual appeal, known as "One Great Hour of Sharing," which aims at raising money for relief of human suffering around the world.

This is a project of the National Council of Churches, in which all the major denominations of both the Protestant and the Orthodox groups cooperate.

The appeal also coincides with appeals by Roman Catholic and Jewish agencies for relief funds which are all given nation-wide coverage through the National Advertising Council by means of radio, TV, outdoor advertising and wire services to newspapers.

Why this appeal? The answer is constantly the same: while we Americans have to spend money to reduce, millions around the world go to sleep hungry, in rags, without adequate care, illiterate, and homeless.

The causes are the same, too. Wars, ignorance, hatred, superstition, tyranny and poverty continue to afflict and impoverish millions of people. Speaking, such conditions are a blight on the proud history of man's accomplishments.

Speaking religiously, these conditions are a denial of the faith that bids us translate words and thoughts into positive action, one expression of which comes from the New Testament: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." (Matthew 25:40)

Church World Service, the helping agency arm of the National Council of Churches, uses its funds, including those raised on One Great Hour of Sharing Sunday, for a far-flung help program.

There are refugees from Cuba in our own land, refugees in Jordan, refugees at Marienfelde in West Berlin, and millions in Hong Kong. There are those who are not refugees, but who are impoverished and ignorant in countries like Venezuela in Latin America.

Some programs provide food to keep back starvation, while others provide clothing and shelter. Some provide medical clinics and education in hygiene, while others aim at job training and building up of know-how for self-support.

The funds are administered in a variety of ways including through national churches overseas, mission stations, welfare agencies and YMCA works. This year, Church World Service hopes to raise more than $15 million, if Americans are generous. It will never meet all the need; but it will help the helpless.

In Monroe County churches of the following denominations support Church World Service through the One Great Hour of Sharing Appeal, or in some other way: American Baptist, Episcopal, Evangelical United Brethren, Methodist, Moravian, Reformed Church, America, United Church of Christ and United Presbyterian.

In these churches a poster is displayed on which is shown four sad and forlorn children, looking hopefully at all of us. In their way, children in need tell the story of human misery and want most vividly. We hope that their appeal will find few people in Monroe County passing by on the other side of the street.

Give for relief through your own congregation's relief program. If you do not belong to a church, anyone of these congregations will be glad to accept your gift to the needy of the world.

One Great Hour of Sharing by us can mean life for someone to come for some other human being.

Today's Lesson:

The Great Commandment

By N. Speer Jones

OUR SUBJECT for the first quarter has been "Jesus and the Ten Commandments." In this lesson, the last in the quarter, we conclude with what has been called the Eleventh Commandment.

Although it may be called the Eleventh, it is far from an addendum; it is rather the one from which all the other Ten Commandments proceed. If one truly obeys this commandment, the others will follow naturally.

The heart and the soul are mentioned separately in this commandment. The heart would designate the center of man's emotions, especially of love. The soul would designate the center of man's personality.

In the enlargement of this idea as expressed in Leviticus 19:18, we find once more the image of man as a reflection of his Maker. The chapter begins with the injunction for man to be holy, for God is holy.

It is only on this basis that we can hope to follow God's injunction to love our fellow men. We cannot hope to achieve it on the mere basis of natural affinity, or common interests or personalities; on this basis there are far too many of our neighbors who not only fail to attract us, but positively repel us. Our only hope is a deep appreciation of the fact that we are all children of the same God, and that the seed of holiness is therefore in us all.

The two commandments cited from Deuteronomy and Leviticus are related and given preeminence by none less than Christ Himself (in Matthew 22:35-40). This was done, moreover, during Christ's last public teaching; it occurred on Tuesday of Holy Week, and the rest of His communication before His arrest was with only His own disciples.

In a typical way, Christ turned a petty query into a vehicle for one of His greatest messages. A Pharisee lawyer asked Him to give preference for one of the 600 or so precepts of the Jewish Code, hoping He would take sides in their petty legalistic arguments and be entrapped. Christ thus not only avoided the trap, but turned it to His own advantage.

G. Campbell Morgan (as quoted in "Peloubet's Select Notes," pp. 105-106) maintains that love of God cannot be achieved through love of nature. He may bring respect, reverence or fear, but not love. Love of God is based on knowledge of God, he reasons; love comes of "approbation of and inclination toward" as we know the underlying good. Thus he recommends not the study of nature but the study of God through Christ.

The story of the rich young man told by Christ to give away his wealth (Matthew 19:16-22) is not to be taken to mean that all wealthy persons should do likewise. It was necessary in the case of this particular rich man because he had made his wealth by his god. The important point, for rich and poor alike is the necessity of God's preeminence in our lives.

Being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus—Romans 3:24.

Grace saves us, not character or works or opinions or good references—but the mighty and incredible grace of God.

Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ—Romans 5:1.

Genuine peace is possessed only by those who are in Christ, untroubled by guilt, unafraid of earth's temporary perils.

Religion Today:

Is 'Shared Time' The Answer To Stalemate?

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

A revolutionary approach is being discussed today for solving the stalemate over government aid to parochial schools.

It's called "shared time." Simply put, it would mean that church school pupils would go to public schools for some classes, such as typing, geometry, physical education and science, in which a religious orientation was not deemed necessary.

Both churchmen and educators—Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish—have voiced keen interest in the plan.

It offers "a refreshing ray of hope at a moment in history when something dramatically different is needed," says Msgr. John B. McDowell, superintendent of Catholic schools in Pittsburgh.

An Effective Answer
Various problems, as well as advantages, are seen in the idea.

Generally, however, the reaction has been that it might provide a far-reaching and effective answer to the prolonged, often bitter conflict over public aid for parochial schools.

"It would give the Roman Catholics a greater stake in the public school system," says the Rev. Dr. John C. Bennett of Union Theological Seminary. "It would help to unify the community."

Under the proposal, public and parochial schools jointly would provide education. Many children would attend classes in both. And some children, if their parents chose, could still take all classes in public schools.

But such religious group would be able to provide the courses or supplemental instruction regarded as essential for retaining the religious dimension to learning that is not provided in public schools.

Enriched Experience
For instance, courses in history, literature, economics and social studies, in which the religious factor has a part, might be taken in church school, with gym, industrial arts, mathematics and other classes taken in public schools.

This would bring children of all creeds and kinds together for part of the time, and thus provide "an enriched educational experience," says Arthur Gilbert, consultant of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

It also should help end "the divisive argument for public funds for church schools," says Dr. Harry L. Stearns, superintendent of Englewood, N.J., public schools and member of the United Presbyterian Christian Education Board.

Just who started the idea, or when, is hard to put a finger on.

Easing the financial burden on parents of parochial school children for total education, strengthening their support for public schools, giving them a part in public facilities that they help pay for, stimulation of all groups to provide adequate religious perspective to education, easing of tensions and closer understanding between both school sectors.

The plan would require much overhauling of class scheduling and administrative operations on local scenes. Some Roman Catholics also have noted it would mean some compromise in the church view that all truth is interrelated and that every subject has its religious aspect.

"However, it must be recognized that compromise for the common good is often necessary within a democracy," says Msgr. O'Neil C. D'Amour of the National Catholic Educational Association, Washington, D.C.

Dr. Gerald E. Knoff of the National Council of Churches Division of Christian Education said the plan is important to "all Americans concerned for the future of our public schools — and for the place of religion in our educational system."

ROY Ringwald's new cantata, "A Celebration of Easter," will be offered at East Stroudsburg Methodist Church on Sunday at 4:30 p.m., in a presentation by the Shawnee Choir directed by Dr. Earl Willhoite.

The use of carol tunes is a distinctive musical characteristic of this new work. Although carols are commonly identified with the Christmas season, carols have been composed and sung at all seasons of the year over many centuries.

In composing "A Celebration of Easter," Ringwald selected nine carol and hymn tunes for inclusion in the cantata. These add a joyous and triumphant spirit to the work and make it a very enjoyable cantata to listen to.

The tunes come from France, Holland, Finland, Bavaria and the United States. All other music — about four years ago by Dr. Ben. It was suggested tentatively net, and also at about the same time by Dr. Claude D. Nelson, a National Council of Churches consultant. They later enlarged on it in scholarly circles, as did others.

Last fall, in the Protestant periodical, Christianity and Crisis, Dr. Stearns put the proposal in broad detail. The Religious Education Association, in its latest journal, picked up the Stearns outline, along with wide comment.

Since then, in recent weeks, "shared time" has been a prime topic among religious and educational leaders.

The Solution?
Rep. Edward R. Finnegan, D-Ill., said in Congress the idea might be the solution to the nation's public-parochial education dilemma.

In Chicago, superintendents of parochial and public schools recently conferred informally on the idea. In Hartford, Conn., parochial students already take some classes in public school, on a small-scale "shared time" basis.

Says Theodore Powell of the Connecticut Education Department: "There is growing recognition that both broad Democratic social experience and effective religious education are needed. Shared time offers us a constitutional means."

Among various benefits cited are:

Easing the financial burden on parents of parochial school children for total education, strengthening their support for public schools, giving them a part in public facilities that they help pay for, stimulation of all groups to provide adequate religious perspective to education, easing of tensions and closer understanding between both school sectors.

The plan would require much overhauling of class scheduling and administrative operations on local scenes. Some Roman Catholics also have noted it would mean some compromise in the church view that all truth is interrelated and that every subject has its religious aspect.

"However, it must be recognized that compromise for the common good is often necessary within a democracy," says Msgr. O'Neil C. D'Amour of the National Catholic Educational Association, Washington, D.C.

Dr. Gerald E. Knoff of the National Council of Churches Division of Christian Education said the plan is important to "all Americans concerned for the future of our public schools — and for the place of religion in our educational system."

Cantata To Be Presented In E. Stroudsburg Church

ROY Ringwald's new cantata, "A Celebration of Easter," will be offered at East Stroudsburg Methodist Church on Sunday at 4:30 p.m., in a presentation by the Shawnee Choir directed by Dr. Earl Willhoite.

The use of carol tunes is a distinctive musical characteristic of this new work. Although carols are commonly identified with the Christmas season, carols have been composed and sung at all seasons of the year over many centuries.

In composing "A Celebration of Easter," Ringwald selected nine carol and hymn tunes for inclusion in the cantata. These add a joyous and triumphant spirit to the work and make it a very enjoyable cantata to listen to.

The tunes come from France, Holland, Finland, Bavaria and the United States. All other music — and the settings of these tunes — is by Roy Ringwald.

In a brief description of "A Celebration of Easter," Ringwald said, "The movement is continuous from beginning to end; it is not divided into formal parts. However, the cantata does comprise three interlocking sections.

Part I is primarily on the theme of Redemption. The prevailing mood is one of sacred drama.

Part II recalls the Incarnation, and is lighter in color — pastoral in mood.

Part III returns to the Passion, proceeding to the Resurrection, and ends triumphantly.

The presentation of the cantata this Sunday will be its first performance in Monroe County. There will be no charge for admission, but a free will offering will be received.

Parson To Parson

By R. G. MacLeod

The devil came to Skye and for three days the inhabitants of this little Scottish isle trembled in fear behind closed doors. The dark sinister shape was seen everywhere, on the misty moor, on high crags and even on the sea walls.

Such a creature these mortals man had never seen before and never hoped to again. It had a squat, hairy body with muscular arms that touched the ground as he walked. Oh, it was the devil alright! He had a long chain that clanked and rattled everywhere he went.

People prayed who had never prayed in their lives before the need was certain and many wished that they had gone to "kirk" every Sunday.

Billy Graham had lived at the time, couldn't have brought more people to church. Strange enough, when the danger passed so did the need for churchgoing. Now most of the Scottish Highlanders are good God fearing folk, — but there are some — you know.

The creature that these folk mistook for "auld Nick" was a great ape that had escaped from his cage while the freighter "African Star" was anchored in the port of Portree on the Isle of Skye to wait out a North Sea storm.

This was the first primate that the people of the port had ever seen, and having no shape that they could recognize, they were certain that the devil had loosed on their homeland. What with dragging a long chain and screaming wild vocal renditions who could blame them?

Sailors from the ship captured the animal and put it on display to educate the poor humans by showing them what they had been so scared of, a big monkey from far away Africa!

Checked By Vacation Bureau Survey Indicates Interest In Joint Area Promotion

A MAIL survey conducted by the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau among 150 merchants and business executives in Monroe County which produced a 23 percent return, reveals that 100 percent of the respondents would be willing to devote some time to participating in a group that would promote the major economic interests of the entire Pocono Mountains community.

The first question, concerning general business conditions in the area, indicated that 63 percent of the merchants felt that conditions were improving, 28 percent thought business was staying the same, while only nine percent felt the situation was deteriorating.

In response to the next question, "What quarter of the year is the best for you?", the winter season was selected by 40 percent, while the summer months were next most popular with 37 percent. Only two people felt that spring was their best season, however, over 30 percent of the total group selected fall as their second best season.

Varying Estimates
To the question, "What percentage of total dollar sales in your business is derived from outsiders?", the following answers were given: 27½ percent of the merchants estimated less than 10 percent; 18 percent estimated between 10 and 20 percent of their business; again, 18 percent estimated 20-30 percent, and finally one person selected 30-40 percent.

More than 20 percent of the Pocono merchants surveyed gave no answer on this question. This question brought out the following interesting quotes: "Twenty-five percent of my business comes from outsiders, during July, August and September." Another quote — "I see more and more strangers in our store in the spring and fall months." A third quote — "Our biggest business is from the cottagers and the resort employees."

Other Reasons
"Being on vacation" was given as the most frequent reason for people being in the Poconos. Other reasons most often mentioned here were "summer homes", second place; "honeymoons", third place; and in a poor fourth position, "visiting relatives and friends".

As part of the survey the respondents were asked to indicate whether the following statement is true or false: "A couple of dozen tourists per day throughout the year would be economically comparable to acquiring a new manu-

SU Senior Among Top 30 In Nationwide Science Test

PHILIP E. Hansen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Detlef A. Hansen, 1435 Glen Brook Road, Stroudsburg, a senior at Stroud Union High School, is one of 30 top science students from 16 states who have been chosen as finalists in the 19th annual nationwide competition for Bausch & Lomb Science Scholarships at the University of Rochester.

He will come to the University of Rochester's River campus April 4-7 for final tests and interviews to determine winners of the scholarships, of which two or three are provided annually by Bausch & Lomb Inc. Award of the scholarship is based on merit, and the amount of each award depends on the financial needs of the recipients.

600-Plus Applicants
During their stay in Rochester, the students will be entertained by the optical firm and the university, and will live on the campus. They were chosen from more than 600 applicants throughout the United States, to be eligible for the competition the applicant must have won a B & L honorary science medal, awarded annually to the top science student in each of the more than 6500 participating high school senior classes.

Hansen, who stands first in his class of 123 students, is a member of National Honor Society, band, dramatic and math clubs. He is president of the Senior Class and on the yearbook staff. He studied at Lehigh University last summer under the program of National facturing industry with an annual payroll of $100,000. The answer to this question is "true", however it is interesting to note that the group was almost evenly divided in their answers. The next question asked concerned the amount of money which most nearly represented the investment currently being made by Pocono resort owners to improve their facilities for 1962. The choice ranged in the question from $250,000 to $2,000,000, 46 percent selected the figure of $1,250,000 while 27 percent selected $750,000. Actually the amount being spent this year in the Poconos is about $1,500,000.

The next two questions asked the merchants about complaints, and conversely, compliments, most often overheard from visitors to the Poconos. Although three people said they had heard no complaints, other Pocono merchants reported specific negative sentiments. Most often mentioned was the traffic problem — with one person commenting, "The situation, though being corrected, will take many years and much publicity to overcome the long-standing unfavorable impression."

Frequent Complaints
The second most-frequently heard complaint was "there is nothing to do". Other interesting comments were "no drinking on Sunday", "unsightly billboards and signs", "lack of good eating places", "bad experiences with information booths", "poor highway directional signs", and "few points of interest". On the other side of the ledger, there were many complimentary remarks heard. Perhaps the most frequent was a comment on "the friendliness and hospitality of the resort people and the residents of the Poconos". Other favorable remarks mentioned the "beautiful scenery and environment", "location", "fair prices", "top fishing and golf facilities", and "polite police".

To a query regarding the kind of a promotion job being done, by the various Pocono interests, 46 percent felt a "good" job was being done, 36 percent gave a "poor" rating, while 18 percent indicated they felt a "fair" job was being done. The next question asked the merchants to select a figure which most nearly represents the number of inquiries received and processed by the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau in 1961. The range offered was from 10,000 to 100,000.

46,000 Inquiries
Fifty-five percent chose the figure of 50,000, while 18 percent picked 25,000. A large percentage gave no answer to this question. The actual figure of 1961 was 46,000 inquiries. In conjunction with the inquiry question, a question was asked relative to the actual number of outside visitors to the Poconos in 1961. Here the range offered was from 50,000 to 950,000. Sixty percent of the merchants interviewed thought that the figure was 350,000, while another 26 percent chose 650,000. Again, a number of people did not answer. The actual number of visitors to the Poconos last year was 750,000.

Finally, although everyone was unanimous in saying he would be most willing to participate in a program to promote the economic interest of the area, only 73 percent of the group surveyed would be willing to contribute any money in order to develop such a program.

An interesting comment given in answer to this question was that "perhaps a golf tournament should be sponsored each year in the Poconos as part of the PGA tour with the prize money being put up by the local merchants, the industries, and the resorts in the Pocono Mountains community".

Man Hurt In Fall Of 20 Feet

SWIFTWATER—Lester Marvin, Canadensis, fell 20 feet while installing a television antenna at Swiftwater Inn Thursday afternoon.

Marvin and his assistant, Charles Siglin, were attaching guy wires to the tower following its installation. As Siglin watched from the ground, a portion of roof collapsed, the tower toppled and Marvin landed on the roof, 20 feet below.

Dr. E. O. Headrick, Mt. Pocono, was summoned. He gave first aid at the scene and aided Siglin and Richard Bullock, owner of the hotel, in removing Marvin from the site and to the Monroe County General Hospital.

Marvin was listed in good condition by the hospital last night with a laceration of the left jaw, fractured ribs on the right side, a cerebral concussion and multiple contusions and abrasions. He was admitted to the second floor solarium.

Progress Results In End Of Ferry

BY DON ALLEN
Daily Record Reporter

PROGRESS in more forms than one resulted in the shutting down almost 20 years ago the last ferry to operate in this area.

On May 4, 1945, a group of planes from Stewart Air Force Base, N. Y. were maneuvering in the Bushkill area when one of the student pilots cut the cable of the ferry operated across the Delaware River by Jeremiah Rosenkrans. It never carried another car or passenger.

The plane did not crash, but returned safely to its base. The ferry, on the other hand, was doomed, since it was almost impossible to secure cable during the war. And shortly thereafter Rosenkrans became ill and gave up the business. He died in 1951.

Rosenkrans' wife, Agnes, who lives in Flatbrookville, N. J., recalls it as the only breakdown in service while her husband operated the ferry.

She denies a pictorial story which appeared in a Newark newspaper's Sunday supplement in September, 1943, which reports the ferry closed because of a government agency's notification that Rosenkrans would have to post a bond to insure 24-hour-a-day service and submit his boat to a safety examination if he wanted to continue operating.

The history of the ferry is almost as old as the history of the country. Actually, over the years, there were two ferries operated in the Bushkill area where the Delaware makes a sharp S curve.

The first was founded by Daniel Decker in 1756, when he was only 19 years of age. His was farther downstream than the ferry which Rosenkrans operated.

They will face juvenile court action.

Extensive Research
Mrs. Horace G. Walters, curator of the Monroe County Historical Society, researched several references to both ferries from a book, "That Ancient Trail," published in 1942 and written by Amelia S. Decker.

It relates that Decker came from Ulster County, N. Y., and at once entered the ferry business. During Gen. Sullivan's campaign against the Indians in 1779, soldiers marched down the Old Mine Road from Mackhackameek, now Port Jervis, N. Y., to join Sullivan's troops in Pennsylvania.

Several times they arrived at Decker's Ferry and camped there for varying lengths of time, resting, washing their clothes and preparing to join the regiments in Pennsylvania.

On May 7, 1779, Col. Philip Van Cortlandt's regiment camped there, crossed on the ferry, marched past Shawnee and arrived at Fort Penn in Stroudsburg. From here, they went into the woods to cut a road for Sullivan's army at Easton.

The Decker ferry remained at that spot until 1838 when it was moved by Eugene Rosenkrans, father of Jeremiah, to the opposite bend of the river.

Prior to 1838, the elder Rosenkrans operated the Decker ferry for 18 years.

After its removal, the ferry continued operations—originally being operated by piling it across the stream, which was about 500 feet wide at that spot.

Later, a cable was attached to the 45-foot, barge-like craft, attached to a pulley on another bank strung overhead from bank to bank and the ferry was driven across the river by the current. Still later, an outboard motor was used for locomotion.

Seen Erroneous

The Newark article which Mrs. Rosenkrans says is erroneous reports that before the pleasure driving ban and gasoline rationing of World War II, the ferry carried autos, two at a time, across the river for 35 cents each, regardless of the number of passengers.

The boat also transported hay, cattle, vegetables and other items of merchandise.

Several local residents can recall riding the ferry. The doom of the Rosenkrans ferry and its counterparts along the river was sealed with the post-war expansion of highways and construction of bridges.

But in the early days of our nation's history, the ferries were a vital link in the country's transportation system. Older residents may well weep for a vanished era.

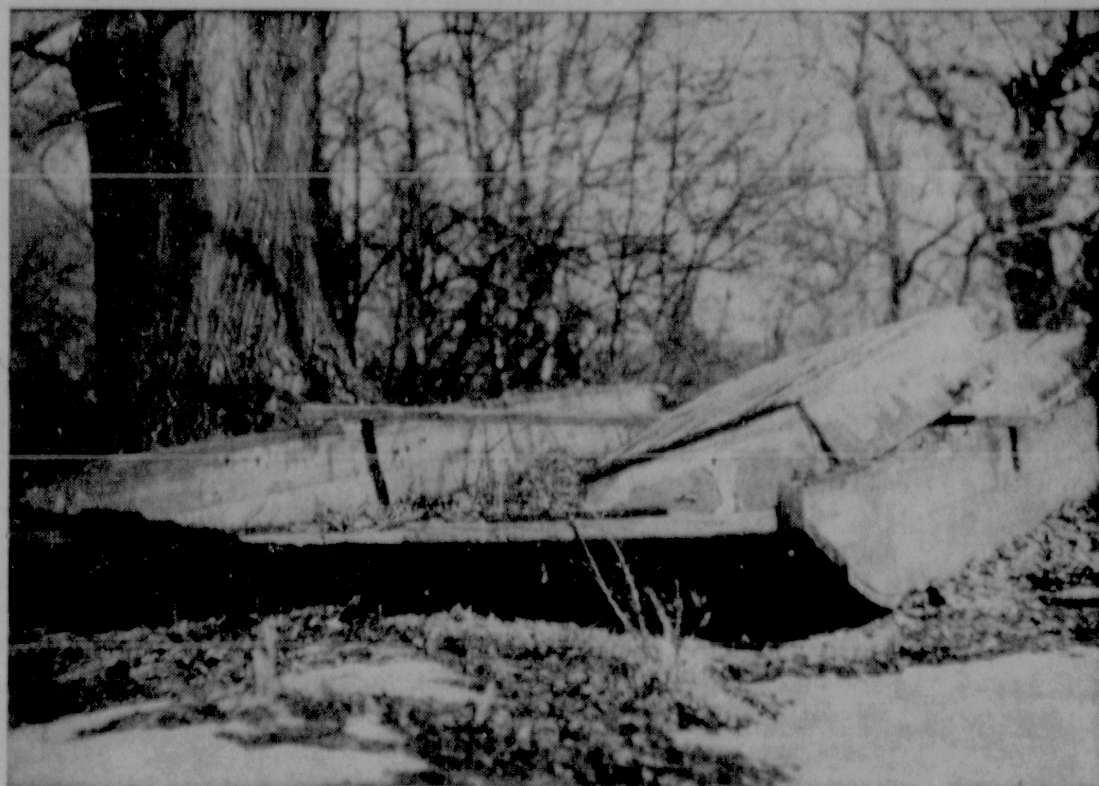

Hasty decisions are made that later lead to a lifetime of regret. When selecting your memorial see the

HOW your banker

Can help you make the most of your money

Many people go in and out of banks all their lives without knowing how very helpful their banker can be—or in how many ways. There's an easy way to find out. Just visit with him. You'll discover he's glad to know you better—and always glad to do anything he can to help you make the most of your money.

To start with, your full-service commercial bank offers every financial service you need. Your banker can show you how a checking account will help you keep your records straight . . . how a savings account builds your cash reserve and earns interest, too. He can discuss the advisability of a loan which may even save you money! He can provide a safe place to keep your valuables, securities, deed, will and other important papers or help you in planning your estate.

And there's more. For example, if you're about to buy a house, your banker can help determine its value. If you're thinking about investments, he will be glad to advise you. And he can often suggest ways to save money on tax matters.

The important thing is that there are many ways your banker can make life easier for you if you'll only let him. So get better acquainted—it can be a rewarding friendship.

Hatching Trouble

Two reliable Washington reporters who cover news of interest to Government employees have reported that the Administration is looking with favor on proposals to "liberalize" the Hatch Act.

This is the law which now restricts the political activities of civil service personnel. It serves two purposes. One is to protect the public from what could become an army, more than two million strong, of political campaigners. The other is to keep civil servants from being pressured to lend political support to whatever administration happens to be in office.

This news comes on top of a recent utterance of the Civil Service Commissioner, who urged employees to speak publicly in support of existing Government programs, and to "explain" programs that the Administration urges for adoption or expansion.

And it comes at a time when we are told the Administration programs will require that more than 130,000 new employees be added to U. S. payrolls.

The American public apparently is not yet aware of the danger that public servants may be marshalled into a mighty political engine, almost irresistible in any national election.

Even now, the two million Government employees and their families constitute a formidable voting block. One Federal employee union chief claimed after the last election that it was the votes of these people who swung the election.

If farmers and city dwellers can be said to "vote their pocketbooks," this is just as true of Federal employees. Most of them can be depended upon to vote for man or party that promises more and bigger programs and more and fatter Government jobs. Their careers are greatly advanced by such increases.

Politicians already have established the semi-annual rite of raising Federal pay before Congressional and national election.

Anyone who feels that Federal taxes are high enough now, and that seems to be a fairly large bloc in itself, should make himself heard on this attempt to mobilize civil service people for political

New Truck Regulations

Editor, The Daily Record:

In reference to the new inspection requirements for half and three-quarter ton pick-up and smaller panel trucks.

First let me say that I am one hundred percent in favor of improved highway safety and law enforcement.

The new inspection law requires small truck owners to have four-way flashers installed, two blinking from the front and two blinking from the rear when said vehicles are stopped or stalled on or along a highway. Also to supplement the flashers there are three reflector flares and red flags for placement on or close to the road, which also must be purchased. Also the small truck owner on a non-commercial basis must have his name painted on the side of the vehicle. Another expense.

This may be O.K. for the commercial operator who likes to advertise anyway but I feel that for the private citizen it is not justifiable. There is no doubt that these items have merit and if used properly will provide a positive and rapid means of identification.

However there are a few points to take into mind.

The first is that this equipment is approved by the state and at present, to the best of my knowledge, there are only two makes approved by the state of Penna. Now I for one could install on my own pick-up (half-ton non-commercial) the flashers and construct reflector flares that would serve exactly the same function and provide the same margin of safety.

This would mean a savings in dollars and cents. This procedure could be approved or disapproved by the inspection station. Nobody would be getting away with anything because as soon as you take the vehicle on the road you are subject to inspection by the law enforcement officers to see that you have what is required as far as safety warning devices are concerned.

This practice, I understand is not allowed. Probably because there would be less of the state approved equipment that would have to be purchased and that other brands, probably a little cheaper but just as good and effective, would be made available. This though would probably eliminate the kick-back to some of our honest politicians.

The second point to take into mind is the physical size of the smaller trucks as compared to some of the larger luxury cars. Apparently they are safer than the smaller trucks and are not subject to mechanical failures, therefore do not require safety warning devices.

A third point is the comparable number of said vehicles on the highways. In effect, the small truck owner on a non-commercial basis is told he is a hazard on the highways.

Another point is that any piece of equipment, vehicles or otherwise, is only as safe and effective as the operator.

There is no real problem as to where to draw a line between the larger and smaller trucks, commercial or non-commercial, just license them on a commercial basis. Why should the small truck owner on a non-commercial basis be separated from the passenger car owner and be required to meet the standards of the larger and commercial vehicles?

Also, I believe that there are other and more effective ways to increase highway safety. The first point I would bring out is that the present laws be enforced on a more stringent basis and forget the friend of a friend of "Joe Conniver" in City Hall. This brings out an interesting point with an ironic touch; that person has to pay a penalty under a law which was probably drawn up by members of the "Under The Table Society".

Another way to improve safety is to be more stringent in giving driving tests. An important point here is that everyone be required to pass said test in a conventional shift type vehicle, which to learn to operate teaches co-ordination. Any Jack-ass can make a vehicle stop and go, who knows where, but to operate a vehicle is something else.

I realize that there are exceptions to the conventional shift type vehicle, but these could be given special consideration and would probably be better drivers than most. So you see there are ways which are painless and less expensive to increase highway safety.

DISGUSTED TAXPAYER

Writes On Tax Problems

Editor, The Daily Record:

Tax Payers unite! We have nothing to lose but our money! If that statement were altogether true it would be a wonderful slogan for a tax league; but high taxes not only take our money, they can also take our 'shirts,' our homes and our inalienable constitutional rights.

An indifferent American public through its insatiable desire to live 'the life of Riley' regardless of who pays the bill, has practically forced the various branches of government to the verge of bankruptcy. Elected officials are not entirely to blame for our tax problems. By trying to please and satisfy their constituents in order to be continuously re-elected, they often allocate money recklessly rather than prudently.

A few people care; many say nothing can be done; too many simply shrug their shoulders and say "so what?" The Pennsylvania Tax-Payers League was organized by people who care and believe so strongly in America that they are willing to work to save our precious heritage.

This league is organizing tax leagues in every city, borough and township of the Commonwealth.

These local leagues are studying their tax problems and making recommendations to their taxing bodies for tax reductions. Local leagues united in the State League are combining their powers to end waste in government spending and lower taxes at all levels. Every tax payer should cooperate.

All persons interested in tax reductions or the organization of a local league are urged to inquire about individual or group memberships. All independent tax leagues are invited to affiliate with the Pennsylvania Tax-Payers League. Honorary memberships may also be acquired. For information write to The Pennsylvania Tax-Payers League, 438 Buckhorn Road, Altoona, Pa. You will be under no obligation.

Tax Payers MUST unite! We have more to lose than our money!

Defends Rifle Training

Editor, The Daily Record:

Saturday's "Daily Record" of March 17 containing the article, "Bullet Rips Into South Stroudsburg Home" is partly erroneous and also misleading. It is true that a bullet was discharged from a .22 caliber rifle which entered Mr. Walter Kutish's residence, but it did not involve four Stroudsburg juveniles, only one; and not the two boys of the Stroud Union Rifle Team.

The youth who fired the gun is in no way associated with the Stroud Union's Rifle Team or the school's Onawa Rifle Club. Members of the team and coach feel strongly that your closing statement has misinformed and misled the readers in their thinking about the high standards of care, use, and safety of firearms that have been the basic principles that are inculcated into the behavior patterns of every boy in rifle.

After hundreds of hours of instruction and guidance in the correct use of firearms I have given to over three hundred youths in our local high school in the past fourteen years, I am willing to stand by my statement that no boy on my squad or club would ever create such a regrettable incident as occurred last week. Our records substantiate this.

With years of shooting six times in state competition held at Du Bois and Penn State University, other matches at Harrisburg, Fountain Hill, Easton, and local rifle clubs, it is most distasteful and humiliating to the rifle team, coach, and school personnel to have an unblemished record, achievement, skill and pride reduced to a suggested level of trigger-happy teen-ager snap shooter who might try a shot at anything, even in the dark. This certainly is not the standard with which our high school wishes to be compared.

It is the wish of everyone that our readers will not conclude erroneous inferences from the facts and half-truths have no place in our world of today either in work or sports.

Dear Doctor...

By Burton H. Fern, M.D.

Dear Doctor: Can cabbage juice cure ulcers?

Mr. D. P. (Conn.)

Dear Mr. P.: Possibly. Cabbage juice is supposed to have cured some incurable ulcers. Cabbage hackers credit a mysterious unidentified vitamin U. Others are more skeptical—their ulcers didn't heal.

Cabbage does contain a known thyroid-slowing chemical. Eat enough and you'll grow abnormally sleepy and calm. Your nervous stomach slows down, allowing the ulcer to heal.

But why mess around with thyroid function when ulcers can be helped more naturally?

Question Of Sound

Dear Doctor: Extravagant hearing-aid claims like yours dunned me into buying an expensive piece of junk. How can my device possibly separate sound and static?

Miss E. S. (Manitoba)

Dear Miss S.: Hi-fi sets can! Turning down treble helps eliminate hissing scratches. Turning down the bass blocks our rumbling wows.

Buy a hearing aid the way you buy clothing.

First, let your ear specialist size up and measure your hearing loss. Then, he can help you find the gadget best tailored to your need.

Eye Infection

Dear Doctor: Why won't my doctor let me use cortisone eye drops on a fever-blister infection in one eye? The drops soothe both pain and redness.

Off The Record

By Bob Clark

Alice Hastings, faculty advisor of the Stroud Courier, East Stroudsburg State's student publication, either is a wiser individual today or the most cynical person after hearing a star-studded array of journalistic speakers at the Columbia University Press Conference.

The College Hill English teacher and her student editors, Nancy Capozola and Len Farace, both of Bangor, and Bette-Jean Laurensen of Levittown got the full course treatment via a gossip columnist, city editor, and a U.S. information director.

No conference ever went from one extreme of the news world to the other than this year's presentation to more than 1,000 college and scholastic editors. It had everything, including My Gardner's attack on the inaccuracy of news magazines; New York Times City Editor Joseph Duroso's report on four great news stories that broke on the same day; and Edward R. Murrow's worldwide promotion of the United States.

All in all, Miss Hastings and her three cohorts learned that everything is not all hunky-dory in the news world and you only believe what you want to believe.

On the college parody level, Miss Hastings found that troubles beset most editors throughout the Keystone State. Such gripes as administrative censorship, interference of faculty, campus clubs, and other pressure groups were cited by more than a few of the editorial bosses at college and universities.

After hearing the problems at other institutions of higher learning, Alice, Bette, Len and Nancy agreed that ESSC isn't such a bad place to learn the chores of journalism.

The foursome also let it be known that they got a "real fair deal" at ESSC and "would not exchange jobs with any other editor they met at the conference."

If you can stand Gardner, hear the troubles of a "fit to print" editor, come back for Murrow's tub-thumping and still have a thinking man's head you deserve a medal for just showing up. But to top the ice cream with a steady flow of constant beefs by your-sized editors reads Joe Pulitzer's best "beyond the call" award.

ESSC's representatives came, saw and weren't hurt. It is a tribute to the College upon the Hill that instead of returning brainwashed victims the quartet walked before Julia and commented, "We never had it so good."

George Sokolsky

The Irish Festivity

For many years, I have attended the annual dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, the principal Irish event of New York City. Usually, I go with Jim Farley, who still signs his name with green ink. The Society is 178 years old which takes it back to shortly after the American Revolution.

The occasion is famous for old-time oratory — the kind for which the Irish are particularly famous — although there are few these days of the quality of Bourke Cockran or Joe Scott who could make any audience weep over his poor Irish mother. The Irish believe that they are difficult to understand which always strikes one who has not a drop of Irish blood in his veins as an Irish paradox of which George Bernard Shaw would be guilty, for every Irishman wears his loves and his sorrows on his sleeve.

The fact is that the Irish find it easy to be political and he remembered that the chief Rabbi of Israel, Dr. Herzog, when he lived, was an Irishman, whose brogue was the real thing as Mike Quill's is not. And while the Mayor of Dublin is a Jew, it is amazing how these two races of man manage to be such political partners in the amazing metropolises of this wonderful country.

It is often forgotten that the fathers of Irish freedom, Charles Parnell and Douglas Hyde, were Protestants, but the Irish prefer not to discuss minor issues.

As Senator Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, in a brilliant oration that carried with it the perfume of the peat bogs, said: an Irishman has five great loves: love of country, of religion, of learning, of political freedom, of poetry and song.

Senator Eugene McCarthy is a Democrat of the liberal persuasion, unlike the other McCarthy, who was a Republican of conservative persuasion. But both, each in his way, could fit these categories of affection.

Joe is dead but surely not forgotten by friend or foe, of whom there were and are many of both kinds, but Eugene is among us and is characteristic of the new kind of Senator, the scholar who comes into our national legislature out of teaching in school and college.

There are Mike Mansfield and Walter Judd; there is J. William Fulbright who was a college president and a Rhodes Scholar and Paul Douglas who was a professional economist. Eugene McCarthy was a school teacher, and his oratory is polished, his scholarship delightful, his wit biting. In his Friendly Sons' speech, he quoted Cadoc the Wise (first century), an ancient Celtic monk's "Song of Hate":

"I hate the judge who loves to the reading of the Bible in school by so wording the law that a pupil could be excused from the Bible-reading period at the request of a parent or guardian.

The court, however, considers that this provision is not enough and held that it was the "intention" of the legislature to "introduce a religious ceremony into the public schools" in violation of the constitutional prohibition.

There is little argument that the Constitution is sound in prohibiting compulsion in the matter of religion. But it is hard to believe that those who framed it and the founders of our public school system ever dreamed that the basic law would one day be interpreted in such a way as to bar the Bible from any school, public or private. These men never intended that our public schools should be godless. No doubt they recalled the Biblical injunction that "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom."

Those who consider the reading of the Word of God as offensive are few, so few, in fact, that in respecting their rights we should not feel obliged to disavow and distort the spiritual element in our birthright as Americans.

Kemmerer Drills In Germany

ARMY PFC Charles G. Kemmerer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Kemmerer, Route 4, Stroudsburg, recently participated in a combined arms phase of the five-week 4th Armored Division field training exercises in the Germany.

The exercises stressed the ability of infantry, artillery, armor and logistical support units to work together under combat conditions. Training of this nature is designed to maintain a constant state of combat readiness essential to a modern Army deployed to maintain the defense of the free world.

Kemmerer a clerk in the division's 504th Administration Company in Goppingen, entered the Army in October 1959 and arrived overseas in September 1960.

The 22-year-old soldier was graduated from Stroudsburg High School in 1957 and Churchman Business College, Easton, in 1959.

Melvin Returns To Norfolk

EDWIN W. Melvin, fire control technician third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Melvin of 40 Walnut St., East Stroudsburg, has returned to Norfolk, Va., while serving aboard the destroyer USS Du Pont, after a seven-month deployment with the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean.

The ship visited Golfo di Palmas, Sardinia; Naples; the islands of Corfu and Rhodes; Athens, Malta; Barcelona; La Spezia, Italy; Cannes, Golfe Juan and Toulon, along the French Riviera, and Marseilles.

During the deployment, the ship hosted 24 officers of the Federal German Navy for a trip from Naples to Malta for a conference, took aboard 46 members of a Congressional party by highline at-sea transfer, underwent two days' buffeting by winds in excess of 50 knots in the winter's severest storm, arranged and hosted a USO show in Italy, took part in NATO Operation Checkmate, and joined two French destroyers for a bilingual week operating at sea, in addition to taking part in normal fleet operations.

JOHN R. Gould, fireman apprentice, USN, son of Mrs. Elaine Gould of 16 Elm St., East Stroudsburg, is serving aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Coral Sea, which is scheduled to arrive in Yokosuka, Japan, on March 15.

The ship, operating in Far Eastern waters with the Seventh Fleet, is to spend two weeks in the Japanese port, giving crewmen an opportunity to visit Tokyo, Mt. Fuji and the historic shrine city of Kamakura.

The Coral Sea, on a 7½ month tour of duty in the Western Pacific, is the flagship for Task Force 77, which includes all attack aircraft carriers in the Far East.

Japanese Children's Art On Display At ESSC

AN exhibit of the art work of Japanese children from grade one through grade six went on display Thursday in "The Gallery" at the East Stroudsburg State College. Dr. Madelon Powers, head of ESSC's art department, who spent a year of study and travel in Japan, has hung this show from a collection she gathered from visits to "dozens and dozens" of elementary schools all over Japan.

"The Japanese elementary school is a happy place," comments Dr. Powers. "A place where art and music and flowers and beauty are always present, and where the children learn happily."

Work In All Media
The collection being shown includes paintings in tempera, chalk and watercolor; block prints, paper cutting, origami (paper folding) and chalk etching.

In addition, Dr. Powers has displayed photographs of Japanese children in their classrooms, engaged in their daily activities.

Art, music and physical training are given equal importance with other subjects in the public elementary schools, according to Dr. Powers. They are studied daily, as are the other subjects - not relegated to one or two class periods a week.

"There is every kind of art material and visual aid imaginable supplied to these schools. And the music needs seem equally well taken care of."

Food Prices In Monroe Area Up 0.5 Per Cent

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — Food prices for the Monroe County-Lehigh Valley area rose 0.5 per cent during the past quarter ended January 15, the State Department of Labor and Industry said today.

Statewide an upswing of 0.2 per cent was registered during the period. The department pointed out that the rise was largely influenced by seasonal advances in the prices of fresh fruits and vegetables.

The following represent some of the sample food items for the area indicating average cost during the past quarter, with cost during the preceding quarter in parenthesis:

Round steak, $1.15 per pound

($1.20); chuck roast, 65c per pound (60c); pork chops, 97c per pound (97c); sliced bacon, 74c per pound (78c); leg of lamb, 72c per pound (74c); frying chickens, 40c per pound (33c); frozen haddock, 58c per pound (53c).

Butter, 75c per pound (74c); cheese, 34c half pound (33c); fresh eggs, 61c a dozen (66c); frozen orange juice, 23c a six ounce can (23c); cabbage, 11c a pound (10c); lettuce, 23c a head (25c); potatoes, 53c for ten pounds (58c); tomatoes, 31c per pound (25c).

Coffee, 68c per pound (66c); lard, 21c per pound (20c); shortening, 90c for three pounds (89c); peanut butter, 52c per pound (41c); sugar, 59c for five pounds (58c).

same kind of population explosion as the rest of the world, she cannot keep up with construction of adequate school buildings. So, many of them are wooden and "rather rickety." But, whatever the exterior is like, the inside of each classroom is a "joy."

"Flowers everywhere - arranged, of course with the traditional Japanese flower arranging rules. Gay paintings on the walls, and often brightly plumaged birds in wooden cages are placed about the room."

"But the youngsters don't stay in their rooms all day. They are taken out frequently for little walks, and often for long trips around the country. They always have sketching pads and art materials with them. In this way, while still young, they come to know intimately the historical places and objects of Japan, and they learn to love every inch of its ground."

There are many festivals each year and the school children are encouraged to help prepare for them. Boys make kites to fly and both girls and boys make elaborate objects to fasten on the doors to keep away the evil spirits.

The exhibit at "The Gallery" is open to the public. School children are invited, particularly. The hours are from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays - and the show will run through Friday, March 30.

AUTO ODDITIES

Strange, but true tales about automobiles of the past

In 1917 the Enger Motor Car Company, of Cincinnati, manufactured an automobile that was powered by six or twelve cylinders. For power, slow driving or hills, the motorist used twelve cylinders. Then, for normal driving, he touched a lever on the steering column, cutting out six cylinders for economy. The company guaranteed 35 miles to the gallon of gasoline, at an average speed of 20 MPH. Today's automobiles possess power that was unheard of in 1917, and that power can create hazards that often result in tragedy. When you drive, keep your car's power under control . . . obey the speed laws . . . DRIVE TO STAY ALIVE!

NEW...

BUT NOT DIFFERENT

THE CHURCH FOR ALL...
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Here and there America is building modernistic churches.

No one's quite sure where the trend will lead... or whether it yet should be called a trend.

But the thousands who have worshipped in these contemporary sanctuaries seem certain of this: The new architecture hasn't changed the age-old faith. Christianity has known many forms of worship, many terms of expression.

But there has always been Unity underlying diversity. Christians worship the same God and Lord; they revere the same Cross; they search the same Scriptures.

Through human architects who express their devotion in different forms, The Divine Architect is pointing all men to the spire of Faith.

Floating Ball On Pond Bat Signs Spring Here

by Pat Williams
Barrett—A yellow ball floating just out of reach in the pond had Gail and Lyle Upright and Dean Van Why looking for a little longer stick. Just a month ago, children had been skating on the pond.

Later in the day, a group of boys brought out the surest signs of spring: a baseball and bat. A fast game of "swing-around" brought shouts from the boys and neighbors to their windows to view the fun.

Windows and doors were opened following the rain to admit the warmer air that took care of the remainder of the snow on the Barrett landscape. In spite of the melting snow and ensuing mud, children were outside for the kite-flying exhibition at the Barrett YMCA Camp Saturday. The campers made the kites and flew them in the seasonal winds.

The Canadensis Methodist WSCS ladies are receiving congratulations from the church family for their job of renovating the church cottage. The ladies are getting their share of enjoyment by holding weekly meetings at the cottage.

Housecleaning and hats will be running neck and neck for the next few weeks. Usable articles may be donated to the YMCA auction sale coming up in August.

Hats will be worn by every available head on Easter Morning.

Bunny To Get Help
The Easter Bunny will be getting a little help from the Altar and Rkary Society. They have made plans for an Easter Egg hunt for the parish children on April 21.

Help in the form of pledges to the Evans-Blitz American Legion Post for pints of blood will get their drive for 125 pints into orbit.

If the telephone system employed by the legion auxiliary hasn't rung your bell, a call to Lydia Christensen would put your name on the list.

So far, only small mention has been made of the upcoming production at the Pocono Mountain Joint School of "Teahouse of the August Moon". No matter who plays what part, it will be safe to say from the parent's standpoint, it will be an all star cast. The date has been set for Monday night, April 16.

Mud and Water
Although anking through mud and water isn't listed on any calendar of events, Barrett residents will be doing quite a bit of it. But, to date, they have all worn smiles. Mrs. Dennis Quinn is sure she saw spring get off the train at Cresco.

Along with shouts greeting spring, Carl Loeb raised his voice to tell the Moravian Organ Fund Committee that the donations were pushing one thousand dollars.

Invitations have gone out to the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts of Barrett to participate in the parade in Stroudsburg Thursday night welcoming "Aunt Jemina". Final arrangements will be made during the week by Mrs. Michael Bridge and John Nauman. Barrett residents will find tickets available for the Pancake Supper at Rea and Derick's Drug Store, Handy's Five and Ten and Bea Locher's Yarn Shop, all in Mountainhome. Proceeds will go to the Retarded Children's Shelter. The Barrett Junior Women's League is co-operating with the Junior Women's Club of the Stroudsburgs in this project.

Twice more around for the wedding gowns. The annual Wyckoff Dinner is April 3 and a full performance at East Stroudsburg State College May 3. Gowns to be shown will be arranged by Mrs. Mabel Huffman and Mrs. Pat O'Neill.

THE DELAWARE WATER GAP—Artist unknown.

(Collection of Marcia Clapp)

Art Of Seeing

Marcia Clapp

Do you know where this picture was painted? If you recognize the location we would like to have your opinion.

It was an exciting surprise to come upon this painting of the Delaware Water Gap region in the Old Print Shop in New York City, where Mr. Harry Shaw Newman has collected not only rare prints but excellent early American paintings.

The first thing which captures one's attention is the beautifully painted clouds composed so skillfully with glowing, subtle colors. The shadows they cast on the hills to the right are soft and delicate, leading the eye to the stream.

To the left, the rocky cliffs are convincingly painted with strong brush strokes. The trees on the ledges above are rich in color and their patterns against the sky are sensitively suggested. In the left foreground is a double railroad track winding along the stream. Meticulously painted bushes and rocks lead down the hill to the lower right where bare-branched trees conduct the eye across the water to the hills.

By using careful contrasts of light and dark, our attention circles around, pausing at each point of interest. This handsome painting is a splendid example of the Hudson River School of painting. We are not only trying to identify the place where it was painted but hope to establish the artist who painted it, as it is unsigned.

Supper And Old Fashions Highlight Local Club

Newfoundland—A little vest made by someone in Newfoundland in 1875 was among the fashions displayed during the March meeting of the Greene-Dreher Women's Club at Southern Wayne Joint School at which Mrs. Olga Manhart presided.

The vest was brought by Mrs. Robert Beehn, who also displayed several handmade aprons. Connie Edwards showed three dresses, and Margaret Uridel, a sweater, all made by hand. Gertrude Lupocho displayed two afghans; Edythe Gilpin, a dress sewed completely by hand; Joan Hutchins, a sweater; and Betty Lou Geiges, a dress.

A dress and jacket ensemble, and a child's dress were shown by Genevieve Voeste; a dress and several hats by Grace Lindenmuth; and a dress by Eleanor Staph. Each woman detailed the "story" behind each garment, and piece of handwork. The fashion show followed a covered dish supper.

It was announced that Mrs. Harold Rohrbacher, of Panther, a past president of the local club, has received the nomination for president of the Wayne County Federated Women's Club. Election and installation will take place on April 11 at the White Deer Inn, Hawley.

On April 10, the Greene-Dreher Club will install officers at the annual birthday banquet at The Lancaster, South Sterling. The entertainment committee will include Ruth Cunningham, Ruth Fetherman, Thelma Peet and Margaret Beehn.

Speaker for the banquet will be Mrs. Herbert Spencer, of Huckleberry Hill, who will show pictures of Hawaii.

Leslie Younkin Ill

Miss Leslie Younkin, Delaware Water Gap, is a surgical patient at Allentown General Hospital.

Cards may be addressed to room 3007.

St. Patrick's Day Theme For Lions Annual Dinner

"Erin Go Bragh" was the theme of the annual Stroudsburg Lions St. Patrick's Day celebration. A dinner and ladies night was held Tuesday night at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Gail Fegley, vice president, presided during the short business session following the dinner, in the absence of President Lester Abelfelt. He announced that Lester Boushelt had been appointed Lion of the Month for February. He was thanked for his work on the annual charter night.

Additional plans for the state and international conventions were announced. An all-Lion bowling tournament has been proposed for the area.

During the dinner, Louis Mondelle collected the signatures of those present on a birthday card for former president, Harold L. Miller, whose birthday falls on St. Patrick's Day.

The card was presented by program chairman, William P. Deering.

Mrs. Regina O'Neill was honored by the presentation of an "Erin Go Bragh" cake as were Mrs. Irene Torzillo, Mrs. Jack Bohan and Mrs. Numa Snyder. Another was sent to Mrs. Harold Miller who was unable to attend. All of the ladies were presented green carnations.

Through the efforts of Numa Snyder and T. Manning Curtis, a group of student singers and dancers were present to give an Irish program.

Numa Snyder played a violin solo. Instrumental renditions of Irish songs were given.

Musical Aptitude Test Given Water Gap PTA

Delaware Water Gap—Those who attended PTA meeting, in the schoolhouse Monday night, pronounced it one of the most interesting meetings of the year; and felt indebted to Ralph Harrison, music instructor of Clearview School for giving them a message on "How to Listen to Music."

He enumerated the benefits to pupils of Stroud Union Schools. The small children learn through singing; then come the rhythm bands. When they reach the 5th grade, those who show any musical aptitude may study a band instrument. In the 7th grade, pupils may join the junior band. In high school come the various ensembles and dance bands.

All present were interested in the test Mr. Harrison gave to them when he tried out their individual ability to tell the difference in pitch of piano notes. Mrs. Donald Nase scored perfect. This was followed by a drawing of numbers. Mr. Wm. Eichkoff and Mrs. LeRoy Kaiser won copies of the Fred Waring Song Book; and Mr. Harrison gave one to the school.

The talk was preceded by a business meeting presided over by Mrs. Nase. The card game committee, Mrs. LeRoy Kaiser, Mrs. Wm. Fisher, Mrs. O. DelCampo, Mrs. Wm. Donaldson, reported success at the March 1 party and the thanks of the PTA were extended to the many who contributed to it.

The banking committee, through Mrs. Louis Smolak, reported that thirty-seven pupils have banked a total of $460.00. It was decided to have an Easter egg hunt Wednesday afternoon, April 18. Each pupil is to bring six hardboiled, colored eggs that morning. Pre-school children who will attend may leave their eggs in the school store room in the morning. The committee is Mrs. Nase, Mrs. LeRoy Kaiser, Mrs. Wm. Fisher, Mrs. O. DelCampo, Mrs. Wm. Donaldson, Mrs. DelCampo. The PTA will provide prize candy eggs.

The final disposition of the money in the P.T.A. treasury was not decided as it was felt all the members should be present to vote on it.

Announcement was made of a meeting, March 29, at Pleasant Valley School, Broadheads, of the County P.T.A. Council. Anyone

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

Right here and now, I must apologize to my friend, Sally Ferree, and to the Shawnee Choir. Thursday morning, a few minutes before air time, the telephone rang at WYPO and Sally asked for me. Had Rev. Eaton contacted me about a program at the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church on Sunday? No? Well, he had been ill and that was why. Would I mention it? Certainly. And did I know that Margaret Wells was a new member of the group in which her brother, Pete, has long been one of the most important members? I didn't... until that moment. In fact, I had not known that Margaret sang, but people are always surprising me with their talents.

My guest, Jerry Yellin, was waiting for me, and I presume my mind was partly on how we would discuss the gorgeous new fur collection being offered for sale at Wyckoff's by Sol Schulman, Co., Inc., of which he is vice president. So, a few minutes later, with my mind awl, I blithely announced to my listeners that Sally had just been telling me about a concert by Pocono Community Chorus to be held Sunday evening at East Stroudsburg Methodist Church. "I can't find the story in the newspaper," I explained as I leafed madly through the Daily Record, "but she tells me there is one with all the details this morning... so read it, and plan to attend. It will be well worth hearing."

Later I discovered that the program by Shawnee Choir is SUNDAY AFTERNOON at 4:30 in the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church with Earl Willhoite directing. The Choir will sing Roy Ringwald's cantata, "A Celebration of Easter", which, I am told is truly magnificent. Jean Ann Wolbert and Robert Krandonk will be soloists, and they are so well known for their countless appearances throughout this area, nothing more need be said. It will, I am sure, be a marvelously inspirational Sunday afternoon for all attending the program. I hope you will plan to do so.

The picture above shows four more of the Women of Wyckoff's, who are preparing for another Lenten program—the Silver Tea, with music and dramatized reading of "The Scarlet Lily", Monday evening at the Stroudsburg Methodist social rooms. (Don't confuse the two churches... Sunday's program is in East Stroudsburg; Monday's in Stroudsburg.)

In the picture by Rod MacLeod, Betty, who is in charge of background and setting for the program; Donna, who is printing our programs, and I, are beaming approval upon Marlene who has designed the program cover. Marlene is staff artist in Advertising, and a very talented young woman whose ads grow more interesting all the time. Right now she has a few up the sleeve of her pretty leather jacket that are well worth your seeing—so watch for them. In the meantime, join us at the tea which benefits our mentally retarded "wing of girls" at Hamburg State School and Hospital, and let's be reverent and happy together as we work a minor miracle of goodness.

New Line Of Paper-Backs

NEW YORK (AP)—MacFadden-Bartell Corp. announced it will distribute the new "merit" line of paperback books to be published by Bobbs-Merrill Co., Inc. Bobbs-Merrill said the line will "fill the gap between popular mass market paperbacks and the more highly esoteric lines whose sales depend so heavily on the college market."

The Daily Investor

By William A. Doyle

Q. I am paying 4 1/2 percent interest on the mortgage on my home. I own some stock, which is currently paying 5.7 percent. Would it be advantageous for me to sell my stock and use the money to pay off the mortgage? Am I receiving more in dividends than I am paying in interest?

A. That's understandable. It's impossible to come up with a pat answer to your first question. And, from the information you provide, it's mighty tough to answer your second question.

You say your stock "is currently paying 5.7 percent." Do you mean your stock has a current yield of 5.7 percent. The current yield of stock is the annual dividend rate, divided by the present market value.

Pay The Mortgage?

If that is the case, your money is earning more in dividends than you are paying in interest on your mortgage. However, not too many stocks have current yields of 5.7 percent these days. Check your figures again to be sure that your current yield is that high.

There are other factors to take into consideration. If you have the usual type of mortgage, each time you make a payment some of your payment is used to pay the interest due and some is used to reduce the amount of the mortgage. The faster you pay on the mortgage, the faster you build up your "equity in your home." And in that way you reduce the dollars you pay in interest.

However, interest payments are a deductible item on your income tax returns. In general, if you put your money to work earning more money (such as your high dividends) than you pay in interest, you come out ahead—dollar-wise. And, if your stocks rise in price, you're way ahead.

But (and it's a big BUT) I strongly advise against going overboard in stocks, while delaying the possibility of paying off the mortgage. Home ownership remains the best investment for the average American family.

Q. A while back I purchased and paid for 100 shares of Allis-Chalmers common stock. I told the broker to send the stock certificate to me. I still have not received the certificate. What should I do to get my money back?

A. You can sell the stock. You own it, even though you have not, as yet, received the stock certificate. You can't cancel your purchase.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

Poconos Join Select Football Club

WEDNESDAY The Poconos joined a select group that contains only 20 other American towns. Admission to the club was gained when East Stroudsburg State College was selected as a pre-season training camp for the New York Titans, professional football team.

There are only 21 major professional football teams but thousands of areas that could serve as training camps. The amazing part of the Titans camp at East Stroudsburg, is that the area fell into the deal without spending a dime. The only effort involved in landing the Titans was put forth by East Stroudsburg State.

Less than 24 hours after the Titans decided on East Stroudsburg, the Kansas City Athletics announced that next year they will move their spring training baseball camp to North Miami. There is no connection between the Titans and the Athletics but the point is this, North Miami built a million dollar stadium for the Athletics and spent thousands of additional dollars to lure the baseball team. The Poconos secured the Titans without spending a dollar.

Contract Only For One Year

The Titans have signed only a one-year contract with the college but the club has made it clear that if the arrangements prove satisfactory, they will renew the contract for a long period.

The Poconos did nothing to get the Titans but the area can do a great deal to make sure the Titans renew their contract.

It's up to the area to show the Titans that we want them to stay and that we are grateful for the benefits they will bring to the Poconos.

The East Stroudsburg Borough Council can make the first step toward keeping the Titans. At its April meeting council can vote to erect a sign near the East Stroudsburg exit of the thruway, reading "Welcome to East Stroudsburg, Summer Training Site of the New York Titans." The sign would cost only a few dollars but the publicity it would bring the area cannot possibly be measured in dollars.

Parade And Banquet Would Help

When the Titans arrive it might not be a bad idea to stage a big parade for them through the boroughs, followed by a welcoming banquet.

The Titans are going to attract tourists and they will also bring national publicity to our area. It is ridiculous to believe that because the Poconos get a few more visitors, new jobs will be created and it will mean more money for everyone. That kind of garbage has been kicked around this area too long. But another attraction in the area can't hurt business and it will also bring in one-day visitors from areas within driving distance.

And the final benefit comes in the form of pride that the area can take from having the Titans select the Poconos.

But the area can't adopt a do-nothing attitude. The Poconos got the Titans with little effort and isn't it worth just a little more effort to stay among the select list of 21 communities?

Poured Like Asphalt

Penna. Harness Track May Be Built With Synthetics

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP)—Washington County's new harness racing oval may be the first race track in the world to be built of a synthetic material.

Del Miller, president of the Washington Trotting Association, said Friday his group is considering the material for the track that it is striving to open this fall.

"I think it is absolutely the thing for trotting horses," Miller said, "but we want to see it under actual racing conditions. If it works, every race track eventually will have a synthetic surface. It's also known as a Scotch track."

Plans call for covering a half-mile trial track with the material somewhere in Pennsylvania probably in May or June, Miller said.

Plan Trial Races

"We will have some trial races over it and then (if it proves effective) we will build the track out of this material."

Top horsemen from all over the world will be invited to observe the trials, Miller said.

He explained the synthetic "granular" material was developed in the research department of Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. in St. Paul, Minn.

He said he did not know exactly what the material is made of but that it is resilient and water runs right off it. Miller said he understood the material is "poured hot and solidifies right away" and is applied as a surface to an asphalt base.

No Disadvantages

"It has all the advantages and no disadvantages. You could even drive without glasses and not have sand or mud coming up in your eyes," Miller said, adding:

"Horses won't slip on it. With such a surface, you could race and train the year 'round. Now in the winter, we have to ship the horses to Florida for training. It can be put down in any color."

Miller explained that most race tracks now are dirt tracks and a few are turf tracks.

"The cost of upkeep on a dirt track is tremendous. It will be nil on this material. It will require only cleaning and washing," he said.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Emmett Ashford, the first Negro umpire in professional baseball, wants to be the first Negro umpire in the major leagues.

But right now, the nine-year veteran of the Pacific Coast League says he'll just settle for a chance to make the big show.

"I want to be the first Negro umpire in the major leagues and I have faith in the good old American system and the continuing liberalism baseball has shown," the chunky Californian said in an interview.

Just Needs Chance

"All I need is a chance. Listen here, the players and the managers don't look at skin color. All they are concerned with is getting the play called right."

Among Ashford's strongest boosters is Pacific Coast League President Dewey Soriano.

"Dewey tells me that he has tried his best to get me a trial in the majors," Ashford said. "But somehow he hasn't gotten to first base yet."

Ashford started in the now defunct South West International League in the early 1950s. This spring he's in Tucson to work spring training games of the PCL's Salt Lake City team.

He's still in training, hoping to reach first base with the major leagues.

Norristown Faces WPIAL Jinx In Finals Tonight

But Lucas Is Injured

Ohio State, Cincy Gain NCAA Court Final Game

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Defending champion Cincinnati beat incredible UCLA 72-70 on Tom Thacker's shot with four seconds left, and top-ranked Ohio State whipped Wake Forest 84-68 despite an injury suffered by three-time All-American Jerry Lucas

Friday night in the semifinals of the NCAA Basketball Tournament.

The Bearcats, if they can un-jumble their nerves in time, and the Buckeyes will play in a rematch for the title Saturday at 9 p.m., EST.

These two teams played in last year's championship with Cincinnati beating Ohio State 70-65, in overtime while dethroning the 1960 champions and snapping the 32-game winning streak of Lucas and company.

It will take something like that spectacular game to match the tension and thrills that the semifinals had for a roaring sellout crowd of 18,274 at Freedom Hall Friday night.

The Ohio State victory was a relatively simple one but Cincinnati — second-ranked behind the Buckeyes in the final Associated Press poll — had the scare of its life after starting out as if it would demoralize UCLA before the game was half over.

While Lucas sat in the dressing room with an ice pack on a sprained left knee, suffered in a fall to the floor with little more than six minutes left in the Buckeye romp, the unsung Bruins of UCLA made up a 14-point deficit and battled the Bearcats right down to the final second.

Thacker, a 6-foot-2 junior who had been having an off night, got his chance when an offensive foul was called on UCLA's Walt Hazzard with one minute and 34 seconds remaining.

The score was tied at 70, the 13th tie of the game, and Cincinnati stalled the ball until there were 10 seconds remaining. The Bearcats called time out, had a conference with Coach Ed Jucker, and with everyone expected 6-9 Paul Hogue to be given the shot, Thacker took a pass from Tom Sizer, dribbled to the right of the keyhole and let fly with a one-hand jump shot from about 15 feet away.

The Bearcats called time out, had a conference with Coach Ed Jucker, and with everyone expected 6-9 Paul Hogue to be given the shot, Thacker took a pass from Tom Sizer, dribbled to the right of the keyhole and let fly with a one-hand jump shot from about 15 feet away.

Thacker, a 6-foot-2 junior who had been having an off night, got his chance when an offensive foul was called on UCLA's Walt Hazzard with one minute and 34 seconds remaining.

Sportsman To Appear At ESSC

WILLIAM Stockdale, well-known sportsman, author, and lecturer, will present in person his new motion picture, "Travelcade of Sports," at State College Auditorium on Wednesday at 1 p.m. under the sponsorship of The Entertainment Council.

The film which is in color highlights new skiing thrills in new skiing areas. America's greatest ski-jumpers take to the skies in a breath-taking segment of this film, followed by the beauty of the alps, the endurance of the cross-country, and the danger of the downhill course.

Winter sports in general are featured including the flashing blades of world and Olympic skating champions, and the exciting sport of sports car racing on ice. For a change in pace a brief segment of the film delves into the wonderful world of water skiing, including the amazing feat of water skiing barefoot backwards! Stockdale has covered over 100,000 miles thru North America filming sports. He has climbed volcanoes in Mexico and El Salvador, hunted the white whale in Hudson Bay, and fished for grayling in Alaska. Additionally, he regularly covers many important sports events from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Dear Abby

Twice As Difficult, Now!

Dear Abby: I am 22, have been married twice and am still in love with my first husband. We had two children. He loves us and wants us back. We were divorced over a silly argument. We both got stubborn and, before we realized it, the divorce went through.

I married my second husband in a hurry to show my first husband I could still get a man. I am not in love with my second husband. He is younger than I. I guess we were both lonely.

Abby, I would give anything in the world to be back with my first husband, raising our children together. Is there any way out of this mess?

SORRY NOW

Dear Sorry: A woman who pulls wedding rings off, and replaces them nonchalantly, doesn't deserve to be rescued from a mess of her own making. Talk it over with your second husband. He is probably also aware that your

Eddie Fisher Denies Split

NEW YORK (AP)—Singer Eddie Fisher arrived from Rome yesterday and termed "ridiculous and silly" reports published earlier that he and his actress wife, Elizabeth Taylor, planned to separate. He told reporters that "everything is fine" between himself and his wife.

He also had a "we're fine" reply to questions about his relationship with actor Richard Burton, currently co-starring with Miss Taylor in making the motion picture "Cleopatra" in Rome.

Burton had been linked romantically with Miss Taylor in reports published early this month. At the time denials were issued by the Fishers and Burton.

Fisher said he is to negotiate with 20th Century Fox Film Corp. for the production of four movies, in two of which Miss Taylor would star.

marriage to him was a hasty mistake, and will agree to free you. Then you may attempt to pick up the pieces of your shattered first marriage.

Dear Abby: My boy friend is in the Army. He will not be home for seven months, but he wants to send me money to go and buy myself a diamond engagement ring. We went looking for rings when he was home so I know his taste. Is this the way to get engaged? Or will people think we are crazy?

Sergeant's Sweetheart

Dear Sweetheart: If you have shopped for rings together and know what he would buy for you, don't worry about what people will think. Buy the ring.

Dear Abby: We are three girls who go together. A certain girl is trying to go with us. She sits at our lunch table and tries to get herself into our conversations. I hope you won't think we are stuck up, but we are afraid if we don't get rid of her she will give us a bad reputation. She has no friends and none of the boys care for her. We have been told that you are judged by the company you keep. How can we get rid of her without hurting her feelings?

The Three Musketeers

Dear Three: The girl needs a friend. Be nice to her. It will not ruin your reputations—it will enhance them.

Dear Abby: How can a girl, who is five feet eleven inches tall, get a date with a man who is at least as tall as she is? All the runs run after me. I have been a skyscraper ever since I was 13, and no one will know how I suffered in high school. I outgrew every boy I ever went with. I am not horsey. I am graceful, have a nice complexion and I don't act loud.

I would like to dance with a fellow for a change who comes up higher than my belt buckle. Can you help me? I hear there are actually clubs for tall people.

TOO TALL

Dear Too Tall: There ARE clubs for tall people. Check with your Chamber of Commerce. They can give you the local contact. But remember, kindness, integrity and goodness don't come by the linear foot.

Stop worrying. Let Abby help you with that problem. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.
